Wednesday, 12.6.2019: Inclusive Work Environments and Unconscious Bias

9.00–15.00	This module will address diversity and inclusion through unconscious bias and how it can be dealt with via norm critical methods. The participants will both learn about the mechanisms of unconscious bias as well as be introduced to a range of methods and tools to outsmart the human mind. The methods and tools are designed so that the participants can bring them back – and use them – in their own organizations. Diversity and inclusion at the workplace is much more than the business case approach to increasing the number of minorities in an organisation. Managing diversity and inclusion at a workplace starts with a diverse and inclusive work environment, that is, how people in an organisation interact and relate to each other. Much of human interaction is, however, based on unconscious or unknowing categorisation of other human beings. that we evaluate and judge fellow co-workers and collaborators before we are even aware of it. This most often influences our abilities to create diverse and inclusive work environments negatively. Managing diversity and inclusion at the workplace is therefore largely about outsmarting the human mind.

Thursday, 13.6.2019: Norm critical approach & Diversity and Equality Work

9.00–10.30 Norms, prejudices and intersectionality
Norms make up a major part of how we navigate and view gender identity, ethnicity, race and sexuality. But is there a way to become more aware of our prejudices and how we act upon them? In my presentation I will give a short introduction to norm criticism, intersectionality and work and activism experiences from my daily work.
